Tractors and Bulldozers

Bulldozer

The "bulldozer" was originally called a "caterpillar" or a crawler tractor and it was invented in 1904 by an American named Benjamin Holt.

Tractors

The first engine-powered farm tractors used steam and were introduced in 1868. These engines were built as small road locomotives, and were operated by one man, if the engine weighed less than 5 tons. They were used for general road haulage and in particular by the timber trade. The most popular steam tractor was the Garrett 4CD.

Henry Ford produced the first experimental gasoline powered tractor in 1907, under the direction of chief engineer Joseph Galamb. It is interesting to note that the name "tractor" was never applied to this machine; it was referred to as an "automobile plow." After 1910, gasoline powered tractors were used extensively in farming.
